

Dhiya Narasimhan, Pleasanton

Honorable Mention Elementary Illustration

My 4Rs: Rebuild, Redo, Respect, Regrow

My (Re)Generation Action Story:

My 4rs are rebuild, redo, respect, and regrow. I chose rebuild because we need to build better ways to form electricity while helping the Earth. I chose redo because we need to stop our actions now and make better ways to make up for it. I think we need to respect our planet and thank god we have this space to live in. God gave us life, we need to give something back.

Continued on next page

Dhiya's Story Continued:

My choice of regrow was made because we need to grow trees and plants to keep our environment healthy. This way we can have a better life. Even if we are not there by the time our planet has recovered, our grandchildren and their grandchildren will have a neat, lovely life. In this picture I drew the factories in black and white to show that we should stop this habit. I then bolded the heart as a symbol of hope and respect. Inside I drew people rebuilding the land and redoing their actions. They were recycling, regrowing, and many other things for helping the planet. This is colored to show that this is important and we need to start doing this. The reason why I drew stick people is to show that no matter what type of person you are, or no matter how you look, you can still volunteer to help our planet. Go Green!

To make this picture, I used materials that are reusable. The color came from my 3 year old collection of watercolor pencils that I use over and over again. If you want to help but don't know how, you can start with little things like reusing or recycling! I also used erasable markers, colored pencils, and other things! Though it may seem small, it is one step closer to a better,