Reuse, Reconsider, Reevaluate & Remember

My 4Rs Reflection

My 4Rs are: reuse, reconsider, reevaluate, and remember. I chose these words because they hold a lot of value to our earth and I strive to always keep them in mind. To go more in-depth, I chose “reuse” because it’s important to use things more than once as our planet can’t sustain all the waste we produce.

Reconsidering to me means re-thinking about what you’re buying and how it will affect the environment.

I chose “reevaluate” because we all need to assess how much stuff we use and throw away in hopes that we are extra mindful when purchasing. And finally, remembering that our earth won’t last forever is essential to building more eco-friendly communities. My entry is a photo of reusable products that can easily replace single-use items most people use daily. Although just utilizing these isn’t going to create a huge difference, little changes are definitely better than none.
