My 4Rs: Reduce, Reuse, Recycle, and Repurpose

My (Re)Generation Action Story:

Both I and my family recycle whenever possible, and we reuse things like boxes, bags, or containers that things come in.

As part of my Biology classwork, I dug up a small decomposition pit to compost any food waste that students can throw to allow food waste to rot. I also created a small garden for my science class around this compost area. I planted several native plants in this area to allow this ecosystem to thrive.

I participated in litter collection in my school this year as well as last school year. In fact, this artwork that I am submitting today is created 100% from all the different items of trash that I'd gathered in my school courtyard.
